A dramatic comic book illustration of Spider-Man in a state of extreme agony. He is seated on a wooden chair, his body covered in a network of cracks and blood. His iconic red and blue suit is severely damaged, with the upper portion of his torso and one leg missing, exposing his raw, bleeding flesh. He is bound to the chair with thick, dark ropes. In the background, a man in a purple and black tactical suit stands near a brick wall. The floor is stained with blood and contains several discarded medical syringes. The lighting is harsh, coming from a window with vertical blinds, creating deep shadows and highlighting the character's suffering.
